問21. (21) than the familiar 'thumbs up'. There is no doubt in people's mind as to its origin. Everyone agrees that it hails from the days of gladiator combat in ancient Rome. If a defeated gladiator had fought well, he could be spared by a thumbs up gesture. If he had fought badly, he could be slain by a thumbs down. From this use of the two thumb signals came our modern usage, with the thumbs up meaning 'all's well — O.K. ' and the thumbs down meaning 'no good — failure'.

- ① Many hands involve a funnier story ② Few gestures have a stranger history
③ No fighting technique has a more interesting tool ④ Human fingers are more important

問22. Canaries are especially sensitive to methane and carbon monoxide, which made them ideal for detecting any dangerous gas build-ups in coal mines. As long as the bird kept singing, the miners knew their air supply was safe. A dead canary signaled an immediate evacuation. Today, the practice of using a bird to test the air supply has become part of coal mining history, but the ideology behind it has become a popular expression. In my life, I have always been learning about something. I believe that when you experience something, you learn about it. I also believe that when you see something you have not noticed before, this is called learning. Learning is not restricted to schools and institutions. While books are valuable for learning something new, books do not give someone the same knowledge as being active and doing something. Always challenge yourself, and (26). Using my computer and the Internet, I now have more ways to learn something than ever before. For example, I can go online and research about oranges. I can see an image of it and read about its structure. I think everyone should learn with great curiosity. Remember how truly amazing the world is (27).

Do not (28). Although there is a sense of safety by not doing anything dangerous, there is always the chance for exploring and trying things you have never tried before. There are many foods most people have not tried. I recommend that you try a dragon fruit or buy a few different varieties of apples or cheeses at the market and find how different they taste. (29), and in fact I think there may be some you won't like. But my point is that you tried it! For all the foods you did not like, you will find new ones that taste wonderful to you. For the foods you did not like, you learned why you did not like them and what they tasted like. The most important point is that you have experienced something new and you have learned about it. I find there is a great joy in learning. Never let yourself say, "I already know enough" or "(30)". In my humble opinion, the day I stop learning will be the day I die and not the day before.

問26. 26

- ① read as many books as you can
- ② do not go to school and do something active
- ③ try something new in your life
- ④ learn something you have experienced before

問27. 27

- ② when you act with a lot of danger
- ③ after you are mostly active in your life
- ④ when you look with wide eyes like a child

問28. 28

- ① be dangerous when learning to drive down new streets
- ② restrict yourself to traveling down only familiar roads
- ③ try too many new things at once
- ④ look for easy solutions to new experiences

問29. 29

- ① Trust me, and you will enjoy each of them
- ② I'm sure that you will like them
- ③ I can't guarantee you will like all of them
- ④ I don't understand different tastes

問30. 30

- ① I need to learn something new
- ② I want to be famous
- ③ I think about learning and its complexities
- ④ I don't need or want to learn anything new

〔A〕 According to Disney World, Mickey Mouse's official birthday is November 18, 1928, when he made his film debut in Steamboat Willie at the Colony Theatre in New York City. This was the first Disney cartoon with Mickey Mouse in it. However, the first cartoon which starred Mickey Mouse was Plane Crazy in 1928. Mickey Mouse has since starred in over 120 Disney cartoons. Aside from the popularity of Mickey's movies, it has been reported that Mickey Mouse's image is the most reproduced in the world. Over 7,500 items bear his likeness. Jesus is number two, and Elvis is number three. Mickey Mouse's likeness was conceived by Walt Disney and first drawn together with artist Ub Iwerks. Who does the voice for Mickey Mouse? The first person to voice Mickey Mouse was Walt Disney himself. The next person was Jim MacDonald who held on to that position for a long time. As of today, Wayne Allwine now provides the voice for Mickey Mouse.

〔B〕 On March 24, 2004, Alan Burns, 43, was on vacation in the resort town of Kissimmee, Florida. He was sitting beside the hotel pool when he heard a woman screaming about a baby. He immediately looked into the pool—but he didn't see a baby there. Then he looked up: A toddler dressed only in a diaper was dangling by her hands from a third floor railing. He ran to the building toward the child, when the child suddenly let go. Burns jumped to where he thought the infant would land and caught her in his arms. Because of Burn's heroic actions, the child survived the three-story fall with a bump on the head. "I just happened to be in the right place at the right time," said Burns.

問37. What did Burns do at the hotel in Florida? 37

- ① He stopped a baby falling from a third floor window.
- ② He helped a toddler let go and jump.
- ③ He happened to see an infant dangling from a window.
- ④ He saw an infant falling and helped her.

[C] The Great Wall of China was designed to keep people out, but today the Wall has the opposite goal: to draw in tourists. Hundreds of thousands of visitors a year marvel at the dragon-like beauty of the world's largest manmade structure. The years were not kind to the Great Wall, though many sections had been turned into roads or housing developments, others had eroded off steep mountainsides, and much of what remained had been vandalized. It wasn't until 1961 that the Chinese government took steps to protect the Great Wall, declaring it an historic site and outlawing any vandalism and graffiti. In 1987 it was given another boost when the United Nations included it in the list of the UNESCO World Heritage Sites.

問38. What is the current purpose of the Great Wall of China? 38

- ① To protect tourists. ② To keep tourists out. ③ To attract tourists. ④ To catch tourists.

問39. What happened to the Great Wall before 1961? 39

- ① Many tourists visited it. ② It was not well preserved.
③ It was developed. ④ It was used as tourist spots.

- ④ Making a boyfriend or girlfriend is ranked lower than any other value in Japan.

[F] [Tourist A and Tourist B are visiting New York City and just got out of a taxi.]

Tourist A: Oh no. I left my purse in the taxi. Did you see the name of the taxi company?

Tourist B: I'm sorry to say I didn't. I was too busy looking at the map of New York City.

Tourist A: What should we do?

Tourist B: Can you remember what you had in your purse?

Tourist A: I had my wallet and my passport in that purse.

Tourist B: How much cash was in your wallet?

Tourist A: Most of my money was in traveler's checks with just a little amount in cash. That should be OK, right?

Tourist B: I think so. Do you know what credit cards you had in your wallet? We can call and report those as well as your traveler's checks.

Tourist A: I had a PISA credit card in my wallet.

Tourist B: Okay. I have the same credit card. We can call the information number to get the phone numbers for lost or stolen cards.

Tourist A: Do you know how to report a missing passport? I have never had such a thing happen to me.

Tourist B: I've been through this before. We need to contact the embassy right away. They will be able to help you replace your passport.

Tourist A: Great. Let's ask someone where the Canadian Embassy is located.

問44. Which of the following is true in the conversation? 44

- ① Tourist A and Tourist B are both from New York City.
- ② Tourist B was planning to go shopping in New York City.
- ③ Tourist B remembers the name of the taxi company.
- ④ Tourist B has lost his passport before.

問45. What will Tourist A and Tourist B do in the end? 45

- ① They will give up searching for a telephone.
- ② They will not be able to find a missing passport.
- ③ They will contact the taxi company.
- ④ They will try to contact their country's embassy.

{ G } (Junko's journal)

On June 8, I arrived in Brisbane, Australia and visited a language school there to learn English. My teacher recommended all the students in the classroom to write a journal about our experiences in Australia. She thought it's a good way to practice English (and I agree with her). My classmates were from a lot of different countries, such as China, Korea, Thailand and Egypt. They were all friendly, and like me, were trying to improve their English. On our first weekend we went exploring around the city together. Everything about my new life was so exciting! I was really looking forward to my three-month stay. On July 29, I was starting to feel down. My English was improving, but I still had troubles understanding people outside the school. I was ordering a pizza last night and I had to ask the waiter two times to repeat what he said. I know this is natural. It is not easy to understand everything in another language, but I felt frustrated at times. When I met my Japanese friends living here in Brisbane, they tried to encourage me not to give up. They said it's a natural part of learning another language.

問46. Why did Junko start to write a journal in Australia?

46

- ① She wanted to improve her English during her stay in Brisbane for three months.
- ② She thought it was good to understand everything in English.
- ③ She got advice from Japanese friends who did the same things.
- ④ She was asked by her teacher at her language school to write a journal.

問47. Why did Junko feel frustrated in Australia?

47

- ① She had difficulty writing a journal.
- ② She didn't feel confident in her English ability.
- ③ She needed to start a journal in English.
- ④ She needed to communicate with her classmates.

(H) [John's speech]

What kind of animal gets to sleep in a bed, lies on the couch and rides in the family car? If you guess my dog Carly, then you are right. I'm going to talk a little about the breed of a Labrador as well as my Labrador, Carly. Labradors came from Newfoundland, not Labrador. Labradors are known to be good-natured and friendly dogs. Labradors are often used for guide and rescue dogs. Labradors like to hunt and swim. They're not guard dogs, though they do bark at people. Carly has been a member of our family for two and a half years. Carly is a black Labrador. My mom insisted we get a female dog because we already have four boys in our family. I remember when my mom first brought Carly home she was so small you could pick her up in one hand. It didn't take long for her to grow, though. You should see her now. She weighs about 80 pounds. Carly, like other Labradors, loves her food. She needs lots of exercise to keep fit. Carly loves to go for runs in the park. If you mention the word 'walk' to Carly, she'll immediately go and get her leash, and she won't leave you alone until you take her out. The worst thing about walking Carly is that you have to pick up her 'mess' when she goes to the bathroom. Carly can sometimes be a pain in the neck. She likes to take things from you especially after school when you first walk in the door. She'll take your hat, mitts and anything else you may have in your hand. She won't give it back until you trade her for a cookie! As I mentioned earlier, Carly has a passion for food. One time it was my brother's birthday. My mom bought a big chocolate cake and had left it in the kitchen in a box on the counter. We went out to run some errands and when we got back we found the cake box empty on the floor. Carly had eaten the whole cake. We were very mad with her, but things got worst. Carly got sick. If you didn't know this before, dogs should not have chocolate. It is like poison to them. When Carly got sick from the cake, we had to take her to the vet to get some medicine. We were lucky she was all right. If you were looking for a great family pet, I would highly recommend a Labrador retriever.

(Adapted from the article titled 'My dog Carly By DJ' at <http://chatt.hdsb.ca/~highleyj/>)

問48. What does 'a pain in the neck' mean in this speech? 48

- ① Someone who stretches his or her neck to steal something.
- ② Back pain caused by walking a dog every day.
- ③ Someone or something that is very troublesome.
- ④ A very helpful person or thing.

問49. Which of the following is true about John's speech? 49

- ① Carly gets a lot of exercise and usually eats healthy food.
- ② Labradors are not good at swimming.
- ③ John's parents have a daughter.
- ④ Carly has been in the family for a couple of years.

問50. Which of the following is correct about Carly? 50

- ① Carly always barks at people who pass the house.
- ② Carly takes things from people but soon gives them back.
- ③ Carly is mad about food, so she weighs about 80 pounds.
- ④ Carly doesn't like eating sweets.

Throughout history there have been many people who have changed the world, but there have been few teenagers who have made an impact like Anne Frank. Although she did not know that writing a diary would be a piece of history forever, all of her writing has meant so much to everyone in the world. Anne Frank was born on June 12, 1929 in Frankfurt, Germany. Growing up, Anne and her sister Margot lived a life like any other child. They had many friends in school and they played in the streets with these friends. But as they began to get older, their parents, Otto and Edith, became scared because Adolf Hitler had started making Jews the center point of his hatred, making anti-Semitism spread in Europe. In 1933, Hitler came to power, changing Germany from a democracy to a dictatorship. Anne Frank's parents started to become frightened and made the decision to leave the country. They moved to Amsterdam, where they felt safe, until the Nazis (51). After this point, the Nazis were planning on making all of the Jews move to Germany, which is what made the Franks and their friends the Van Pels go into hiding.

Before they went into hiding, Anne received a diary for her 13th birthday. This is where she wrote every thought about her experience in the hidden rooms in the attic. In this diary, she wrote about the fear and the agony that all of the people (52) in this terrifying situation. She wrote about the experiences that they went through in hiding. They had nothing to do. All they could do was read and do work because they had to be quiet during the day. A friend of theirs, who was not a Jew, was bringing them food so they could survive. The food at that time was scarce but they seemed to manage. The space was even less because of the number of people who were with them. Times were rough due to the fact that some of the family members did not (53). Anne wrote about all of this and expressed her deepest secrets, which were later revealed to the world.

This book made such an impact on the world because it gave a bad situation an actual face. It has (54) an insight that no one would ever know without Anne Frank's diary. As people read this book, they become attached to her for many reasons. She is only a child, although very mature, that has to go through something that some adults today could not live through. Throughout the book, she looks at the positives and says that she thinks her family will be okay. As people become more attached to her they also have a stronger heartbreak at the end of her story, when her family's secret is discovered and they are taken to concentration camps in Germany. This is where Anne Frank and her family sadly died, with only two weeks before the prisoners at her camp were released. The only survivor of her family was her father. A friend found the diary and kept it for safe keeping. She later gave it to Anne's father, who then (55) the world. This diary shares the reality of what Jews went through during World War II; this one diary has changed many people, and it has changed the world.
